Upon gaining a scholarship to play at Oregon State, she moved up to Corvallis to be a Beaver at Oregon State. She was a four-year starter for the Beavers where she is among their program leaders in assists.

After graduating with her degree in Photography Desma left the states to pursue her overseas professional career. Desma played two years in Spain, two years in France, and finished her pro career in Germany. She played four years in Germany as a player, and one year in Germany as a player and assistant coach.

While she was in Germany she took over the US Army Ansbach High School program. She coached JV and Varsity for three years. Desma's coaching career took off after she got hired at Princeton University as their assistant coach. In her first two years there she helped the Tigers win Ivy League championships for the first time in 11 years! After her time with Princeton Desma got hired at UAlbany in New York. In her first year she helped the team win their first conference championship in 9 years! During her time coaching college both these teams went to the NCAA tournament every season.
